KEY PERFORMANCE INDICATORS

SUMMARY

Total transaction volume increased each quarter sequentially throughout 2025. After $4.3 billion of hotel assets traded in Q1, activity rose steadily, reaching $8.3 billion in the fourth quarter. Preliminary full-year volume closed at roughly $24.1 billion, slightly above the $22.7 billion recorded in 2024.

Broker contacts continue to indicate that a lower interest-rate environment, paired with a more realistic bid-ask spread, should provide the catalyst the industry has been waiting for to unlock greater sales volume in 2026. Admittedly, this has been the refrain for the past two years, but 2026 could indeed mark the point where transaction activity finally accelerates. After several years of elevated seller expectations meeting a more grounded buyer outlook, it appears the market has reached a healthier equilibrium between what sellers can reasonably command and what buyers are willing to underwrite.

Noteworthy trades were concentrated in the luxury segment, reinforcing the prevailing conviction that “luxury is the only place to hide.” Trinity Investments was the seller in two of the largest luxury transactions of 2025. In June, the firm sold the JW Marriott Scottsdale for $755 million or $755,000 per key, to Ryman Hospitality Properties. Ryman, traditionally focused on large Gaylord-branded convention hotels, has recently expanded into smaller regional resorts. Trinity's second major sale came in September with the EAST Miami Hotel, which traded to Blackstone for approximately $300 million, or $852,000/ key. Early in 2026, Host Hotels and Resorts sold two Four Seasons hotels, in Orlando and Jackson Hole, for around $1.1 billion to a group affiliated with Michael Dell. In addition, all eyes are on the potential deal to sell the Waldorf Astoria in New York, which only recently reopened after a multi-billion dollar renovation.

A recurring theme across industry conferences in 2025 was the ongoing search for distress. Many funds raised in 2019 are nearing the end of their lifecycle, and limited partners are pressuring general partners to return capital—even as some managers continue to hold out for improved performance. This dynamic could drive incremental dispositions in 2026.

One significant distressed transaction that did close was the sale of the Hilton San Francisco Union Square and Parc 55. The combined purchase price for the roughly 3,000 rooms—representing nearly 10% of the city's inventory—was $408 million, reflecting a steep 76% discount from the approximately $1.5 billion appraised value. San Franncisco is, once again, on investors' minds and, not to be outdone, Blackstone acquired the Four Seasons San Francisco for a reported $130 million, aiming to capitalize on what it views as improving market fundamentals.

CMBS origination volumes remained solid at just under $18 billion. While this total is nearly 25% lower than in 2024, the number of loans increased by more than 100, signaling a healthy and active CMBS landscape. We expect CMBS to remain a preferred refinancing tool in the year ahead.
